

EMPLOYEES NEED TO FOCUS ON WHAT THEY CAN CONTROL

During change, employees can waste a lot of energy on things outside their control.

SHIFT YOUR ENERGY.
FOCUS YOUR IMPACT.

A USEFUL FRAMEWORK IS:

 CONCERN		CONTROL
	What decision was made	→	 How I respond
	How fast the change is happening	→	 How I prepare
	What others are saying	→	 What I choose to believe or verify
	Whether I like every part of it	→	 Whether I stay professional
	Unclear details	→	 What questions I ask
	New expectations	→	 What skills I build

This concept is especially helpful because change often creates anxiety when employees focus too much on what they cannot influence.

*Focus on what you can control.
Influence your response. Improve your results.*

You can't control the change, but you can control your focus.
Control what you can. Let go of the rest.
